The background of the advertisement is a photograph of a religious festival at night. Several men, dressed in traditional red long-sleeved shirts and white dhotis, are performing a ritual. They are holding large, ornate metal lamps (diyas) that are lit with a bright flame. The lamps have a curved handle and a decorative base. The men are standing in a line, and their arms are raised as they hold the lamps. In the background, a large, ornate temple structure is visible, with its intricate carvings and pillars illuminated by the festival lights. A large crowd of people is gathered around the performers, watching the ceremony. The overall atmosphere is festive and spiritual.
